MEDICAL.

Death grimly bars the passage-way through the door of happiness for thousands upon thousands of wretched women. The woman whose nerves are racked by pain, and whose strength is sapped by debilitating drains, due to weakness and disease of the organs peculiar to women, cannot be happy. She is not only shut out from happiness, but death daily confronts her. Maternity, to a woman thus afflicted, is a man thus afflicted. It is fraught with great danger. Even if the woman survives, it is only to live a life of suffering. This is needless. Many women have found a sure, safe, and certain remedy and have spoken in no uncertain words of its almost miraculous results. This remedy is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly upon the organs of the female system, and restores the healthy action of all the organs of the body. Under its benign influence, the weak, sickly, nervous, fretful invalid, becomes a robust, capable, helpful, wife, friend, and mother. I could write a year and not praise your medicine enough.

Dr. Pierce's book, "The Common Sense Medical Adviser," is a treasure in any family. It contains 1000 pages and 300 illustrations. A copy FREE to every person who will send to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only. For cloth binding, send 31 stamps.

ACROSS THE OCEAN FERRY.

[Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.]

ROYAL MAIL STEAMSHIP UMBRIA,

Sept. 3.—Well, I am drawing near my sea voyage. They tell us we will reach Queenstown some time between midnight and 3 o'clock to-morrow morning. The trip across has been all that could have been desired. The weather was, with but one exception, been fine, the company keen and but few cases of sickness have occurred. I escaped all together, and consequently enjoyed the trip in every particular. The sea breeze has kept my appetite with a razor's edge all the time, and while some were distressed by mal de mer I never missed a meal.

The run from Alexandria to New York last Friday was without incident. I reached the latter place early in the afternoon and proceeded to Bowling Green, lower Broadway, where the Cunard Steamship Company's office is located and secured passage on the steamer Umbria, which was to leave at 3 o'clock p. m. the next day (Saturday).

I was on the ship several hours previous to sailing, during which time I inspected my stateroom, and found that while not among the best located, it was amiable, where I would least feel the motion of the ship, and that it was fitted with every luxury and convenience. Of course I examined the many things belonging to a modern ocean liner, so I will not attempt it. I will mention a few things only. In the first place the capacity and luxuriousness of such a ship as the Umbria (and there are others still larger) affords food for thought, when compared with the description Dickens, in his "American Notes," gives of the old paddle wheel steamer Britannia, the first vessel of the Cunard line. The novelist compares her main saloon to a huge nether, and so apprehensive was he of her safety that he returned to England in a sailing vessel.

At precisely 3 o'clock the captain ascended the bridge of the steamer (all who were not passengers having been previously ordered ashore) and gave the order to cast off.

A fluttering of handkerchiefs from steamer and pier followed, and while some of the voyagers were full of glee and others moved to tears the huge steamer, by the aid of a tugboat, began to glide out of the dock. It took twenty minutes to turn her prow down the river after reaching the middle of the stream, a feat the puffing and snorting little tug finally accomplished, after which the huge pistons of the Umbria began to glide up and down and we were off.

The weather had been uncomfortably warm during the day, and the run down the river and bay, fanned as we were by salt water breezes, was delightful. About 5 o'clock we were off Sandy Hook lightship, where the ship stopped and dismissed the pilot. The engines, which previously had been running at half speed, were subsequently given all the power they possess, and in a few minutes the steamer was cutting the water like a shark.

The "land of my home was now flitting from my view," and by the time the sun was setting America had sunk out of sight with it. The dinner bugle sounded and interrupted my musings. The ship was gently rising and falling, and swaying from right to left, and by bedtime the motion was more pronounced. I rather liked the sensation of being "rocked in the cradle of the deep," as this, combined with the pulsations of the engines, acted as a lullaby, and I enjoyed my sleep.

When I awoke about half-past seven o'clock Sunday morning there were rain, thunder and lightning. The weather soon cleared, however, and meteorologically we had nothing special to complain of during the remainder of the voyage. As the sun set Monday night the weather grew cold and overcoats were donned. We were then nearing the banks of Newfoundland, and at 12 m. next day (Tuesday) we had just crossed them and were 1,205 miles from Sandy Hook. Nothing worth of mention occurred until Thursday, when the waves were running high and the steamer consequently plunging and careening. It was hazardous to attempt to walk about at 7 o'clock when the passengers sat down to dinner, a sudden lurch sent dishes rolling and several had narrow escapes from soup plates and their contents which were precipitated in their laps. Table guards (a sort of ladder-shaped arrangement) were put on, and there was no further trouble.

A Valuable Prescription.

Editor Morrison of the Worthington, Ind., "Sun," writes: "You have a valuable prescription in Electric Bitters, and I can cheerfully recommend it for Constipation and Sick Headache, and as a general system tonic it has no equal."

We spent our time in all sorts of ways—reading, games, watching passing ships, whales, birds, etc. At 12 o'clock each day the position of the ship is shown on a chart which is placed in the main companionway. The latitude, longitude and number of miles made during the past 24 hours are also stated. You are compelled to set your watch twice a day in crossing the Atlantic. It will lose about 40 minutes each day while you are running toward the sun rising.

There is one pleasant feature about modern ocean traveling I neglected to mention above—electric light. There are no sickly, bad smelling, swaying oil lamps, but each stateroom has a brilliant electric light, which you can burn all night should you choose, while every portion of the ship is illuminated by electricity, even the decks, and passengers can remain on them and read all night.

We will reach Liverpool some time to-morrow evening.

Why Not Cigars?

We claim that Plantation Cigars are better than any others on the market at the price. First, because they are made of pure tobacco. Second, because they are hand-made. Third, because they are kept at the same standard all the time. Any number of Plantation Cigars can be smoked with no deleterious effect, because there is no drug used as a flavor which shatters the nerves and upsets the stomach.
